

We Awaken By Calista Lynne

"ReseÃ±a del editor One year ago a car accident killed Victoria Dinhamâ€™s father, and now all that keeps her going is the hope of getting into the Manhattan Dance Conservatory. That is, until an ethereal girl named Ashlinn visits her in her sleep claiming to be the creator of good dreams and carrying a message from her comatose brother. They meet in Victoriaâ€™s subconscious, and over time they come to care for each other. Ashlinn is secure in her asexuality, but Victoria has never heard of it.

Soon, however, she realizes she too must be asexual. On the day of Victoriaâ€™s big dance audition, her mother is unable to drive her to town so Ashlinn must turn human to help Victoria chase her dreams. While in New York City, Victoria and Ashlinn explore their affections for each other and try to understand what it means to be asexual teenagers. Unfortunately for the couple, Ashlinn cannot stay human forever, and humanity begins to suffer from not having her around to create pleasant fantasies each night. BiografÃ±a del autor Calista Lynne is a perpetual runaway who grew up on the American East Coast and is currently studying theater in London. She is oftentimes seen screeching at Big Ben and pointing out the same landmarks on a daily basis, and is having difficulty adjusting to the lack of Oxford commas across the pond. She writes because it always seemed to make more sense than mathematics, and has superb parents who support more than just her latte addiction. If Calista Lynne could change one thing about her life, it'd probably be her lack of ability to play both of the ukuleles adorning her rainbow bookshelves. Tumblr: calista-lynnne.tumblr.com
