Anna Heussaff author of the book of the month for March on ClubLeabhar Anna Heussaff was born and raised in Dublin Her father Alan was from Brittany and her mother Bríd from Donegal She spent seventeen years working as a reporter and as a producer director in RTÉ before she began writing full time in 2002. I loved this book and read this in one go last night The evocation of place is very well done and the characters really e alive A tiny weakness oddly enough is the opening scene where it is not apparent until she is described that one of the major characters is a young woman and for the first couple of pages one imagines she is an elderly lady This took a bit of a mind jolt to.
