"Pressestimmen Grant Fowlds' tireless effort to educate the children of the world, conserve vast expanses of land and save the last rhinos, is truly awe inspiring. As he travels through Africa, gaining the trust of local governments and councils, we start to understand the scope of his undertakings. He reaches out to organizations around the world to aid him in his progress to expand anti-poaching projects, elephant-relocation programmes and even to assist with bringing the lesser-known, glorious gorillas of the Democratic Republic of the Congo (DRC) to the attention of the world. But at the forefront of it all, he is doing all he can to Save the Last Rhinos. We, as a race, need to wake up and get on this train. The more we, as individuals, can do to rally support and spread the word, the better chance we have of not seeing the demise and eventual extinction, not only of rhinos, but of all endangered animals. The rehabilitation and conservation of land in Africa is a vital part of this progress, and Grant Fowlds and his team are at the forefront of this war. Read this book. You will get a sense of Africa like never before, from a true African soul. (David S. Lee, Limbani in the blockbuster movie Black Panther)Grant Fowlds' book is an excellent read. It's both sobering, and uplifting at the same time. Sobering because the sheer extent of the rhino-poaching crisis is revealed. Uplifting because Grant, and individuals like him are passionately committed to making a difference. The innovative ways in which they reach the hearts and minds of children, on both sides of the conflict, is impressive. As, too, is his work with communities and other stakeholders. (Moirra Smith, General Manager Africa & Middle East, Goway Travel)Exceptionally readable - a fluid and captivating story . . . a swashbuckling tale. (Dr Dave Cooper, Rhinos Without Borders veterinarian, and Debbie Cooper of iSimangaliso Wetland Park)A rollicking true-life adventure that celebrates rhinos and people. (Guy Rogers Daily Herald)A terrific read . . . an outstanding book! (Gary Player and Vivienne Player)A truly heart-wrenching story, but a must-read for all who value our wild animals and their right to roam free. Grant Fowlds is a Zulu in a white skin and loves the people who hold the key to animal conservation. This is an intriguing story that sends a clear message to the rest of the world. (Phil Liggett) Werbetext The remarkable story of Grant Fowlds, a conservationist who has dedicated his life to saving the last rhinos, vividly told with the help of Graham Spence, co-author of the bestselling The Elephant Whisperer. Rhinos once roamed many places throughout Europe Asia and Africa and were known to early Europeans who depicted them in cave paintings at the beginning of the 20th century. 500,000 rhinos roamed Africa and Asia by 1970. Rhino numbers dropped to 70,000 and today as few as 29,000 rhinos remain in the wild.

In 2016 the number of rhinos poached in South Africa stood at 1,054. Department of Environmental Affairs in 2017 529 rhinos had been slaughtered by 24th July in the last nine years over 6,100 rhinos have been poached in South Africa leaving fewer than 19,000 white and 2,000 black rhinos in the country. The situation is critical. Last year more than 1,200 rhinos were poached in South Africa alone. Rhino extinction will create detrimental domino effects. Important ecological relationships are being shattered and many that survive because of the rhino will also die. The ancient rhino supplies life-giving nitrogen-rich grass all prairie grazers need to survive. The northern white rhino should not be brought back to life. The levels of pain and quality of life were unacceptable from a conservation perspective. This does not sound like a big deal.
